

Published based on Work Harder for Yourself Than Your Boss

Work Harder for Yourself Than Your Boss

May I ask you a favor?

If you are like most people, your immediate response would be, "Sure. What is it?" or "Sure. Anything to help."

And if you were asked to give more at work, chance are, you would be the first to come in early... stay late... give up your weekends... and maybe even work on holidays.

Why is that? What is that drives us to work harder for other people than we do for ourselves? Because I guarantee, if you were to dedicate to doing the work you do at work towards growing your own home-based business, or polishing a skill, or towards any other endeavor that would move YOU closer to living into your true self... it would be a done deal.

But we don't. At least not naturally. Is there an solution? Perhaps.

Also, did you know there IS a way to motivate your network marketing team to duplicate? True story.

And if nothing else, you'll get a good laugh out of this video. I was literally CLUELESS...